Coping with grief in loss of teens

Southwestern calls in counselors, cancels homecoming

Friday was a day for Southwestern High School to cope with grief as the community learned more about a police chase Thursday afternoon that took the lives of Southwestern senior Tyler Cooley, 18, and Madison resident Brooklyn James, 19, and seriously injured former Southwestern student, Blake Coombs, 18, of Madison.

Superintendent Jeff Bates said the Friday night homecoming game was rescheduled for Saturday, Feb. 15. He said he met with teachers and staff from the middle and high schools Friday morning to break the news and discuss how to talk with their first-period students.

Things are "pretty somber" around the campus, he said.

Bob Pimlott worked as director of clinical services for Madison Consolidated Schools from 1985 to 2002. He helped the schools through the deaths of eight to 10 students and a couple of teachers over the years.

"Probably the biggest thing you can do is just listen to them. And let them share their grief, let them share their feelings," Pimlott said. "The biggest thing is, there is no way to answer 'why did it happen?'"

Pimlott noted grief takes a long time to process.

"I think one of the things we have an advantage in in this community is an incredibly supportive community with crises. And, so I encourage kids not to isolate themselves and to try and be with friends and family as much as they can."

Police provide some crash details, Page A6

He said it is important for families to get their children professional help when they need it, even if they at first refuse. He also said spending time with friends and trying to get back into a routine were key for youth trying to move on from a loss.

Mental health providers in the community, as well as teachers and staff, are experiencing a loss too, he noted.

"At the time, you just absolutely have to be strong and bring a strong, caring presence for (the students), and then you can crash after," he said, speaking from his own experience.

Indiana State Police released on Friday some details about the accident that involved a blue Toyota Corolla driven by Coombs, which slammed into two utility poles at S.R. 256 and Thompson Road.

"The Madison Police Department and the City of Madison take police pursuits very seriously. We mourn the lives lost yesterday and ask that the community come together to pray for the individuals and families affected," the City of Madison posted Friday afternoon on its website.

Coombs, who also goes by the last name Eisenhower, attended Southwestern in elementary and early middle school, Bates said. Bates said James had not attended Southwestern.

Southwestern assembled a team of eight counselors, some from Centerstone and Madison Junior High, to talk with students Friday morning. Bates said both Scott County District 1 and 2 have offered to send theirs, but the team of eight is handling things well.

"We've had quite a few kids take advantage and talk to counselors, and they've been fairly busy, but we're in good shape," Bates said.

"Being a small, pretty close-knit school corporation, it's hitting pretty hard."

Hanover couple new owners of iconic Madison tavern

By COLLIN OVERTON

Shipley's Tavern, a staple of the downtown Madison food and bar scene since 1867, is in new hands.

John and Molly Jones of Hanover bought the property and business at 322 West St. this week, and other than a new awning on the front of the building, they have no intention of changing a thing, including the beloved cheeseburger.

"Well, I think Shipley's, when you look at it, since we've been in town — and Molly grew up in Hanover — has been an icon in the community," said John Jones, head coach of the Hanover College women's basketball team and former athletic director at Southwestern Jefferson County Schools who now serves on Southwestern's school board.

"There's been great people who have worked here —the general manager, Jackie (May), has been here 14 years. We're really investing in the people, and Shipley's is an icon in Madison, and, hopefully we can keep it going and it'll be a place Madisonians continue to go to."

Molly, a Hanover native, 1986 Hanover College graduate, former Hanover women's head basketball coach and a current associate athletic director at the college, looks forward to joining Madison's growing small business community.

"I think it's the people," Molly said. "I love Madison and Hanover, I grew up here, and I think that Madison is going in an amazing direction with all of the improvements that it's making, and I think that really excites me — all the festivals in the summertime and being around the people and seeing so many people coming from out of town, and keeping the people who have loved this place for years and years coming back."

The couple had looked into buying the business since late October-early November, Molly said, and saw an investment opportunity in both the restaurant and apartment spaces on the two top floors of the building. The roof needs repair and the rest of the upstairs spaces need work, the Joneses said, but they plan to renovate the apartments.

"It'll probably be a little bit of time before we get some things up there," she said. "That's something we like to do as well, and we've got some rentals and an Airbnb and we like to kind of fix up places and make them nice, so we're looking forward to that piece of it as well, but it'll be a little bit of time. We want to make sure the restaurant/bar is going and doing well first."

The Joneses take over after nearly 15 years of ownership by Cris and Kathryn Sauer.

John Shipley, the man whose name became the trademark of the business, bought the building from the heirs of Charles Eckert in 1944.

The property has changed hands more than 20 times since the first deed was recorded in 1815, according to records compiled by Jefferson County Recorder Molly O'Connor.

"It's a great property on a great location of downtown. There's a reason it's been successful for all these years," John said.

Proposed Senate bill would compile costs of hospitals

By WHITNEY DOWNARD
Goshen News

INDIANAPOLIS — Carma Parrish's insurance saved her $800 by recommending a different provider for her husband's MRI, reducing out-of-pocket costs to $400 instead of $1,200. It's just one example of how price transparency can save patients money.

"I didn't have the job I have now," Parrish, the CEO of NorthPark Community Credit Union, said. "I was living paycheck-to-paycheck."

Parrish addressed the Indiana House Public Health Committee about the negative financial impacts surprise medical bills can have on their constituents, testifying about the need for price transparency.

"Most of the people you (Indiana legislators) serve live paycheck-to-paycheck … they would love this. Three out of five members I see have medical collections on their credit report," Parrish said. "They are paying three times more to buy a car because they have that collection (on their credit report)."

Parrish and several others discussed various aspects of a proposed bill from Rep. Donna Schaibley that would establish an all-payer claims database, which compiles costs of different hospitals and also requires providers to give cost estimates at the patient's request.

"The goal of this legislation is to make sure the billing process is very clear," Schaibley, R-Carmel, told the committee. "The rising cost of health care is impacting wages and health care debt is impacting the everyday life of people in our state. We need to take decisive action."

Studies last year from the Rand Corp. organization reported Indiana's high health care costs, especially at hospitals, relative to other states.

If passed, the Indiana Department of Insurance would solicit bids from a third party to create a database based on previous procedures stripped of identifying information.

Gloria Sachdev, the president and CEO of the Employers' Forum of Indiana, said her organization commissioned the RAND studies at members' request after seeing price differences for their businesses across state borders.

Republicans hold fast against shifting cash to teacher pay

Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS — An Indiana House committee rejected a Democratic proposal Tuesday that would have directed $291 million in unexpected state tax revenue toward one-time teacher pay bonuses. The Republican-controlled House Ways and Means Committee voted 13-7 along party lines against the proposal, going along with arguments from GOP Gov. Eric Holcomb's budget director that it wouldn't be the best use of the money. Another legislative committee, meanwhile, advanced bills that would delay any penalties to schools from lower student scores on the state's new ILEARN standardized test and to end the mandatory use of those test results in teacher evaluations. Ways and Means Committee Republicans endorsed a bill backed by Holcomb that would direct the $291 million to paying cash rather than borrowing money for several planned college campus construction projects, as was allowed under the state budget approved in April. State Budget Director Zach Jackson told the committee that the planned use of the unanticipated revenue collected last budget year could save the state about $135 million in interest payments, making that money available for future state spending.

Dillinger exhumation suit is dismissed

INDIANAPOLIS — A judge has granted a motion dismissing a lawsuit filed by a nephew of 1930s gangster John Dillinger, who wants to exhume the notorious criminal's Indianapolis grave. Marion County Superior Court Judge Timothy Oakes had dismissed Michael Thompson's suit without prejudice last month after finding that he needed Crown Hill Cemetery's permission to exhume the site. The judge later granted Thompson an extension until Jan. 15 to file an amended complaint. But his attorney filed a motion Tuesday seeking to voluntarily dismiss the suit without prejudice and Oakes approved the request. Thompson's attorney, Andrea Simmons, said in email to The Associated Press that the motion the judge approved was "just a procedural step that allows us to re-file at an undetermined future date." Thompson sued the cemetery in August after it objected to his plans to exhume the grave for a television documentary. Thompson has said he has evidence that Dillinger's body may not be buried there, and that he may not have been the man FBI agents fatally shot outside a Chicago theater on July 22, 1934. Attorneys for Crown Hill Cemetery call that "a decades-old conspiracy theory." They opposed the exhumation, saying in court documents that Indiana's Legislature has granted cemetery owners the right to "protect its gravesites from unwarranted disturbance." The History Channel dropped out of the planned Dillinger documentary in September. Thompson had obtained two separate permits from the Indiana State Department of Health for the exhumation. The last permit, approved in October, called for the remains to be exhumed on Dec. 31.

19th-century doorway smashed in court tirade

COLUMBUS — A man who yelled obscenities at a southern Indiana judge who sentenced him on drug-dealing charges smashed an "irreplaceable" 19th-century glass doorway as he was being led from court, authorities said. Jermaine Ford, 33, went on a obscenity-laced verbal tirade inside a courtroom at the Bartholomew County Courthouse on Wednesday, threatening to beat up the judge who had just sentenced him to 22 years in prison on a methamphetamine-dealing conviction. Ford's anger continued as he was being led away by two deputies, when he either used his shoulder or foot to swing a courtroom door so hard into a wall that its glass panel shattered, scattering shards of thick glass into a hallway, said Bartholomew Superior Court Judge James Worton. The judge said he later learned that a young child "went into a panic attack" in the hallway after witnessing Ford's post-sentencing outburst, which continued after the glass was shattered. Worton added an additional six months of prison time to Ford's sentence for contempt of court. County maintenance supervisor Rick Trimpe said the glass panel that Ford smashed was an original feature in the courthouse, built in 1874 in Columbus. "The door and glass were installed when the courthouse was originally built," Trimpe told The Republic, adding that the glass is no longer manufactured and will be costly to replace. Courthouse employees said some visitors on the building's second-floor hallway were ushered into its law library and juvenile court for their safety after the glass shattered.

Jackie, Tito Jackson tour Gary school

GARY — Two of Michael Jackson's brothers returned to their hometown of Gary to watch students perform at a school the siblings last visited nearly a half-century ago. Jackie and Tito Jackson dropped by Gary's West Side Leadership Academy Wednesday for a tour of its performing arts classrooms and to see students demonstrate their talents in orchestra, dance, voice, recording techniques and theatrics. "You guys are so good," Jackie Jackson said as he hugged singer Taylor Iman after her performance of The Jackson 5's hit, "I'll Be There." The last time the brothers visited the school, then known as West Side High School, was for a 1971 concert featured the same year in The Jackson 5's "Goin' Back to Indiana" television special, The (Northwest Indiana) Times reported. The Jackson 5 featured Jackie, Tito, Jermaine, Marlon and Michael, who died at age 50 in 2009. Jackie and Tito were in Gary Wednesday for events related to the groundbreaking for the city's Hard Rock Casino, said Mark Spencer, director of West Side Theatre Guild. When asked what advice the brothers would give students who want to pursue a career in the performing arts, Tito responded: "You have to work hard." Jackie added that, "I would tell them to follow their dreams and never give up." The brothers said they are still performing and recently toured in Denmark.

Nominations open for teacher of year

FRANKFORT — If you know an educator worthy of being named teacher of the year, then now is the time to say so. The Kentucky Department of Education said Wednesday that it would begin accepting nominations for the award. Any full-time public schoolteacher with at least three years of experience is eligible. Nominations can come from students, parents, teachers, administrators or community members. The deadline for nominations is Feb. 15. Nominated teachers must fill out and submit an application that will be judged in March by a panel of educational professions. That panel will choose up to 24 Valvoline Teacher Achievement Award winners in the spring, which will be narrowed to nine and then to three before the winner is announced in Frankfort. The educator named teacher of the year gets a $10,000 cash prize and will represent the state in the National Teacher of the Year competition.

Teacher seen shoving, punching resigns

LOUISVILLE — A public schoolteacher who was recorded shoving and punching a student in her classroom has resigned amid the district's investigation into the fight. Carrie Durham Adams resigned from her position at Iroquois High School Monday, Jefferson County Public Schools spokeswoman Renee Murphy confirmed to The Courier Journal. Adams had been under investigation since October, when cellphone video emerged on social media of her and an underage male student engaging in a physical fight in her classroom. In the 20-second video, a verbal dispute between Adams and the student escalates when she stepped toward him, pressed her chest to his and said: "Put your hands on me. You think I'm afraid of you?" The student was captured pushing Adams back before she grabbed him and shoved him to the floor. The fight continued as they exchanged punches while students in the background screamed and some left the room. Jefferson Schools spokesman Daniel Kemp previously confirmed the video's authenticity to news outlets. The 16-year-old student was charged with felony third-degree assault, the Jefferson County Sheriff's Office previously said. Adams was removed from the classroom, but hadn't been charged as the district conducted an internal investigation, the newspaper reported.

Plant consolidating with Tennessee facility

SHELBYVILLE — An auto parts plant is closing and consolidating production with a plant in Tennessee. Michigan-based Ficosa said any of the 180 employees in Shelbyville, Kentucky, can transfer to its plant in Cookeville, Tennessee, news outlets report. The company will close the Shelbyville plant in July. The first job reductions at the plant will begin in April. The company will provide support and resources to help employees who stay in Shelbyville find other jobs. Ficosa makes exterior mirrors for vehicles and automotive vision systems. "While the decision to close our Kentucky facility was a difficult one, current business conditions in the automotive sector makes it critical for Ficosa to make this strategic move to increase operational efficiency and provide a sustainable model for future growth," Joan Canellas, Ficosa North America's chief executive, said in a news release. "We recognize the effect this move has on our employees, and we are working with them to minimize the impact."

Life sentence in killing of Marine

LEXINGTON — A man who killed a U.S. Marine was sentenced Thursday to life without parole. Fayette Judge Julie Muth Goodman followed a jury's recommendation and sentenced Dawan Mulazim, 36, to life without parole for the fatal shooting of Jonathan Price. Mulazim was convicted in October of intentional murder, first-degree robbery and second-degree assault in the shooting of Price. The Marine's wife, Megan Price, was wounded in the attack but survived. Investigators said the couple was waiting outside a Lexington bar in June 2014 when Mulazim and his nephew, Quincinio Canada, robbed and shot at them. Canada was acquitted in 2018 of charges related to Price's death. He was convicted on charges related to a different robbery and is serving a 70-year sentence. Mulazim was already sentenced to 60 years for the same robbery. Mulazim was previously tried in 2018 but a jury didn't reach a verdict. Mulazim and his attorneys will have the option to file an appeal in the case.

Homeless shelter expands, more services

COVINGTON — A homeless shelter is moving to a bigger facility and will offer more services, officials said. The Northern Kentucky Emergency Shelter in Covington will move to a building on West 13th Street later this year that includes space for a medical clinic, lockers and laundry services, the Kentucky Inquirer reported, citing a news release. The building can house up to 55 more people in need, said Kim Webb, executive director of the Emergency Shelter of Northern Kentucky. The shelter worked with Kenton County officials and St. Elizabeth Healthcare, which bought the building, to provide services for the homeless in the region. More than 1,500 people experienced homelessness in Boone, Kenton and Campbell counties between July 2018 and June 2019, according to a report from the Northern Kentucky Homelessness Working Group. The current shelteris one of four that serve the area.

Trees vital to health, economy

Researchers seek data for statewide urban forest map

By ENRIQUE SAENZ
Indiana Environmental Reporter

A team of researchers is asking for data from cities and towns across Indiana to assemble the first statewide map of urban forests and green spaces.

Researchers from Indiana University's Environmental Resilience Institute, the Davey Resource Group and the Indiana Department of Natural Resources' Community and Urban Forestry Program are asking municipalities across the state to share their urban forestry data to build the publicly available online map and data resource focused on urban green infrastructure.

"Our goal is lofty, because, really, there isn't anybody trying to do a statewide urban forest map," said Sarah Mincey, clinical associate professor at IU's O'Neill School of Public and Environmental Affairs. "The motivation for the whole project is the fact that you can't manage any kind of natural resource unless you know what you have."

Urban forests are made up of all the trees and associated vegetation within the bounds of a town or city. That means thousands, if not millions, of Hoosiers walk or drive within urban forests without knowing.

Mincey, an affiliated researcher for Indiana University's ERI, said urban forests provide significant benefits to people who live in cities.

Although trees stand still and silent, they constantly work to improve the lives of humans nearby in unexpected ways.

"There's a lot of biophysical benefits from these trees," said Mincey. "Trees are a huge benefit for stormwater management in cities. They really slow the pulse of a storm event and the negative impacts that come from flooding. Carbon sequestration, of course. Similarly, trees take up pollutants, nitrous oxides and sulfur dioxides and these kinds of pollutants that we get from cities."

Mincey said urban forestry should be a vital part of a community's climate change mitigation plan because of the obvious benefits and the way it changes the perception of those types of plans.

"Often, when we're talking about climate change solutions it feels like we're being told, 'Don't do this, don't do that,' and we're being told not to drive our cars and to try to cut down on consumption and all these things that feel like things are being taken away from us," said Mincey. "And I think urban forestry has the opportunity to actually feel the opposite and be doing a wonderful service for mitigation. If we can get people involved in urban forest management, we are simultaneously contributing to solutions for climate change, but also really making people feel pretty good about engaging in a green activity."

Mincey said urban forests can also affect communities indirectly. Simple factors like tree shade can cause effects that shape the behavior of people living nearby.

"So, there's really great research about how trees provide shade along sidewalks, and as opposed to a sidewalk where there's no trees, you might find a significant difference in terms of peoples' willingness to walk to a nearby location versus drive because of comfort. So that affects peoples' time outside, and we know that, generally, being outside is a healthy thing. It affects peoples' capacity then to potentially meet their neighbors. You never know where that might go in terms of connecting people and building social ties between community members."

Urban forests also have positive impacts on the human body and the mental health of those who live near them. According to the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, being around trees and urban forests improves mental and physical health. Time in urban forests gives people more energy, helps them heal more quickly from physical ailments, and reduces blood pressure and stress.

Urban forests can also have an economic benefit in a community. Mincey said trees in rights-of-way, in front of properties and on private land usually increase values.

Some researchers have found that landscaping that includes trees can increase property values by up to 20%.

Well-placed urban forests can reduce the air-conditioning needs of nearby buildings by up to 30% and save energy used for heating by up to 50%.

Additionally, landscaping involving trees can improve land value by up to 20%, according to the Food and Agriculture Organization.

From a biodiversity perspective, urban forests also help provide habitats for animals like birds, increasing the populations of species that sometimes struggle to thrive in urban environments.

A comprehensive and publicly available database and map could help city or town officials plan their own urban forests or track tree health trends to maintain their own forest.

The data could even help track or prevent the spread of invasive pests.

"For example, we might want to understand what is the condition of the urban forest across state. And we can dig down into the data and represent the average condition of trees across the state to see patterns," Mincey said. "I think the power behind that is then that [DNR] will now have the ability to say, 'What are the needs of our urban foresters across the state of Indiana,' and the CUF coordinator will be in a better position to access grants and find more funding to disseminate to cities across the state and meet their needs."

Mincey hopes to have the map and database online within the next six months.

She said she and other researchers then hope to expand the urban forestry database to include private institutional spaces and other facilities.

Environmental bills to watch in the 2020 lege session

By ENRIQUE SAENZ
Indiana Environmental Reporter

Members of the state legislature are at the Indiana Statehouse to begin their yearly session to vote on and amend bills that could become the state's newest laws.

Some of the bills introduced could have a direct effect on the state's environment or help or impede Hoosiers from improving their own effect on the environment.

Senate Bill No. 6

Electric vehicle supplemental fee

http://iga.in.gov/legislative/2020/bills/senate/6

Author: Sen. Mike Bohacek

The bill proposes continuing the supplemental registration fee for electric and hybrid vehicles. In its current form, the bill would allow the state to continue imposing a $150 supplemental registration fee on electric vehicles and $50 for hybrid vehicles on top of standard state vehicle registration fees.

Senate Bill No. 33

School City of East Chicago Loan

http://iga.in.gov/legislative/2020/bills/senate/33

Author: Sen. Lonnie M. Randolph

For the fourth consecutive year, Sen. Lonnie Randolph introduced a bill that proposed the State of Indiana produce the funds to help East Chicago schools pay off a loan it received from the state to relocate students during the city's lead crisis.

Since the 1980s, state and federal agencies have found evidence of lead contamination in residential areas surround the USS Lead Superfund site. In 2016, just weeks before the start of the new school year, officials from the School City of East Chicago announced it would close Carrie Gosch Elementary after U.S. Environmental Protection Agency officials found parts of the property were contaminated with lead.

The $3 million emergency loan was used to renovate classrooms and bathrooms at an abandoned middle school to convert it into the new, uncontaminated Carrie Gosch Elementary.

Senate Bill No. 56

Homeowners associations and solar energy systems

http://iga.in.gov/legislative/2020/bills/senate/56

Author: Sen. Linda Rogers

This bill would clarify which screening and preapproval powers homeowners associations in Indiana have over the installation of solar energy systems.

Under the bill, HOAs could require homeowners thinking about installing solar power systems to provide more information about those systems before installation. The bill would also delineate HOAs more power to prohibit installation or require system removal under certain circumstances, including if "a court" found the solar energy system threatens public health or safety or "violates a law."

If stipulations in the law are met, HOAs would not be allowed to prohibit the installation of solar power systems.

Senate Bill No. 63

State forest commission and management plan

http://iga.in.gov/legislative/2020/bills/senate/63

Authors: Sen. John Ruckelshaus, Sen. Eric Bassler and Sen. Greg Walker

This bill would establish a state forest commission that would be tasked with making up a 100-year plan for the management of the state's forests.

If established, the commission would consist of two members of the general public chosen by the governor to serve as co-chairs, two members of the state senate and two members of the state House of Representatives. The commission would also include a governor-appointed commercial logging industry representative, environmental group representative, hunting/fishing representative, outdoor recreation representative, state forester, forest products industry representative and the commission director.

Senate Bill No. 73

Reports of potential violations to IDEM

http://iga.in.gov/legislative/2020/bills/senate/73

Author: Sen. James Tomes

Senate Bill No. 73 could eliminate the option for concerned Hoosiers to anonymously report potential environmental violations to the Indiana Department of Environmental Management.

Currently, IDEM gives users the option to omit personal information like name, address and other contact information when submitting a tip online, over the phone and by mail. That would change if the bill is passed.

The bill would force IDEM to program their site to not allow the submission of a report to the department unless the name and address form fields are filled in, and allow IDEM to reveal the reporting person's name and address to the subjects of the complaint.

Senate Bill No. 99

Study committee on invasive species

http://iga.in.gov/legislative/2020/bills/senate/99

Author: Sen. Susan Glick

The bill forwarded to the Indiana Senate's Natural Resources Committee urges the legislative council to assign an interim study committee to study issues related to invasive species.

The study committee would have to examine the Indiana Invasives Initiative, an agreement between the Southern Indiana Cooperative Invasives Management (SICIM) and the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Natural Resources Conservation Service to establish small partnership organizations called Cooperative Invasive Species Management Areas (CISMA) to manage invasive plants locally. The bill would also allow the study committee to investigate the possibility of making the Indiana Invasives Initiative a state agency.

Senate Bill No. 104

Designated wild areas in state forests

http://iga.in.gov/legislative/2020/bills/senate/104

Author: Sen. Mark Stoops

Retiring State Sen. Mark Stoops introduced a bill that would declare 13 areas inside state forests "designated wild areas," or protected areas where logging, herbicide use, vehicle use and energy development and other disturbances are prohibited.

The bill would include a designated wild area of at least 800 acres in each of the state's 13 state forests.

U.S. to probe fatal Indiana Tesla crash

DETROIT (AP) — The U.S. government's road safety agency is sending a special team to Indiana to investigate a fatal crash involving a Tesla electric vehicle.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said Wednesday that its team will check the crash scene and inspect the Model 3 vehicle involved in the Dec. 29 crash with a parked firetruck on Interstate 70 near Terre Haute.

The crash, which killed the driver's wife who was a passenger in the Tesla, is the second one to be investigated in the past two weeks by NHTSA. Also on Dec. 29, a Tesla Model S sedan left a freeway in Gardena, California, at a high speed, ran a red light and struck a Honda Civic, killing two people inside, police said. The agency dispatched its special crash investigation unit to the site on New Year's Eve.

Authorities have yet to determine in either case whether the Teslas were operating on Autopilot, a system designed to keep a car in its lane and a safe distance from other vehicles. Autopilot also can change lanes on its own.

Tesla has said repeatedly that its Autopilot system is designed only to assist drivers, who must still pay attention and be ready to intervene at all times. The company contends that Teslas with Autopilot are safer than vehicles without it, but cautions that the system does not prevent all crashes.

NHTSA's crash program has inspected 23 crashes involving vehicles that the agency believed were operating on some form of partially automated advanced driver assist system.

Fourteen of those on the cases involved Tesla models. The team investigates more than 100 crashes per year.

The firetruck in the Indiana crash was in the freeway travel lanes with its lights flashing as crews handled a different problem.

Also, on Dec. 7, yet another Model 3 struck a police cruiser on a Connecticut highway, though no one was hurt. NHTSA also is investigating that crash.

Vehicle flees police, 2 teens die in crash, 3rd hurt

Courier staff report

Two teenagers were killed Thursday afternoon and a third seriously injured when their vehicle crashed after fleeing an attempted police stop, Indiana State Police reported Friday morning.

The initial investigation by Indiana State Police-Versailles detectives indicated the vehicle, which was driven by Blake S. Coombs, 18, of Madison, fled from the officer northbound on State Road 7 from Madison.

A front seat passenger, Tyler Cooley, 18, of Hanover, and a backseat passenger, Brooklyn James, 19, of Madison, sustained fatal injuries when the pursuit ended in a crash on S.R. 256 at Thompson Road.

Cooley and James were both dead at the scene.

Coombs was airlifted to a Louisville-area hospital where he is being treated for serious injuries.

Shortly before 4 p.m., a Madison Police officer attempted to conduct a traffic stop on a 2005 Toyota passenger car in Madison, ISP said.

The Indiana State Police and Jefferson County Sheriff's Department assisted Madison Police in pursuing the vehicle.

The vehicle turned westbound on State Road 250, southbound on State Road 3, and then eastbound on State Road 256 back toward Madison.

Coombs lost control of the vehicle on S.R. 256 at Thompson Road. The vehicle left the roadway, striking two utility poles on the northeast corner of the intersection.

Coombs, who also went by the name Blake Eisenhower, was unlicensed at the time of the crash.

Detectives from the Indiana State Police-Versailles Post assumed the lead role in the investigation and the ISP-Versailles Post Crash Reconstruction Team investigated the crash.

A crime scene investigator from the ISP-Sellersburg Post also assisted.

Duke Energy reported an outage in the Kent area that started at 4:16 p.m. on the company's outage map.

The map showed 679 customers without power at 6:07 p.m., but that number had dropped to 240 as of 7 p.m. and power was restored by Friday morning.

The investigation is ongoing. State Road 256 remained closed for about seven hours for the investigation and crash cleanup.

The Indiana State Police was assisted by the Madison Police Department, Hanover Police Department, Jefferson County Sheriff's Department, Madison Fire Department, Hanover Fire Department, King's Daughters' EMS, Air Methods Medical Helicopter, Jefferson County Coroner's Office, Duke Energy, and Stanley's Wrecker Service.

Former United Methodist 'Bishop Mike' Coyner dies

From United Methodist News Service

INDIANAPOLIS — Former Indiana Conference Bishop Michael J. Coyner of The United Methodist Church died Jan. 8 at 70.

The bishop died less than two weeks after being diagnosed with cancer of the esophagus that had spread to his liver.

Coyner was bishop of the Dakotas Conference from 1996 to 2004. He returned to his native state of Indiana in 2004 and served three four-year terms, including overseeing the merger of the North and South Indiana conferences in 2010 into a single regional body.

"Bishop Mike," as he was called, was originally from Anderson, Indiana.

He received a Bachelor of Arts from Purdue University, where he was part of the honors society Phi Beta Kappa, a Master of Divinity from Duke Divinity School and a Doctor of Ministry from Drew Theological School.

The Rev. Daniel R. Gangler, who served with Coyner for 10 years as Indiana's director of communications, called the merger of the Indiana conferences Coyner's greatest accomplishment.

"He also was active in being a pastor to our pastors and to the lay leadership of the Indiana Conference," said Gangler, who is now retired. "His accomplishments and style of leadership made the conference a more inclusive conference."

Coyner also was a prolific writer who often wrote reflections for United Methodist publications, including United Methodist News.

His weekly e-mail devotional article entitled "An E-pistle from Bishop Mike" was sent to hundreds of pastors and laity.

He also wrote three books for Abingdon Press: "Making a Good Move: Opening the Door to an Effective New Pastorate (1999)," "Prairie Wisdom: Reflections on Life in the Dakotas (2000)," and "The Race to Reach Out: Connecting Newcomers to Christ in a New Century."

A memorial service for Bishop Coyner will be at 11 a.m. Eastern Time Saturday, Jan. 18, at St. Luke's United Methodist Church, 100 W. 86th St., Indianapolis.

He is survived by his wife, Marsha Lynn, and two children: Laura, an engineer employed with General Electric in Louisville, Kentucky; and Steve, a pharmaceutical sales representative in Indianapolis.

HANOVER ROUNDUP

Women remain unbeaten in HCAC with win

Men pull away in 2nd half for win over Mount

By JORDAN BEAR
Special to the Courier
sports@madisoncourier.com

Hanover couldn't have gotten off to a better start with a 28-9 lead after the first quarter. But the Panthers had to fend off Mount St. Joseph over the remaining three quarters to hold on to a 64-53 win at home on Wednesday night.

Playing only its second home game of the season, Hanover had a dreadful second quarter as it went 1-for-14 from the field and and scored only three points to see that big first quarter lead dwindle to just nine points heading into the halftime break.

The Panthers woke up in the third quarter to forge a 20-point lead going into the final frame, but the Lions simply wouldn't go away. Mount slowly chipped away at Hanover's lead but the comeback was too little, too late as Hanover got timely stops late to hang on for the victory.

Hanover coach John Jones said he'll never apologize for a win but there's definitely things his team can address.

"Foul trouble hurt us in the second quarter with (Alexis) Nall and Brooke Todd and you just can't go 1-for-14 in a quarter," Jones said. "Still you never apologize for winning. We led wire-to-wire so we'll be happy about that but there's some things that we can address going forward."

Hanover was led in scoring by the All-American Nall, with 22 points on only 10 field goal attempts. Todd, a former Switzerland County Pacer, had another great game with 13 points while also chipping in five assists. Former Madison Cub Katie Hartman had 10 points, eight rebounds and seven assists.

Over the past two games, Todd has dished 16 assists against only two turnovers, but she gives all credit to her teammates.

"It makes it a lot easier when everyone is hitting their shots for the last two games," Todd said. "I mean

Kris Sandlin

Sandlin to coach X-ctry at Madison

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Kris Sandlin has been named the new boys cross country coach at Madison Consolidated High School.

Sandlin, a standout runner at Scottsburg High School and Franklin College and record five-time winner of the Madison Courier 10K, spent the past several years coaching at Switzerland County High School before joining the high school faculty at Madison this year. He replaces Tyson Skinner atop the boys program.

"Kris brings a wealth of experience and success to our program," Madison athletic director Joe Bronkella said. "As a high school and college runner, Kris knows what it takes to be successful at a high level and is ready to help cultivate a passion for running and success with our athletes."

While in high school at Scottsburg, Sandlin ran cross country and track where he still holds the cross country record. Sandlin was also a record holder at Franklin College at the time of his graduation in 2014.

At Switzerland County, Sandlin coached three state qualifiers, one semistate team, multiple school record holders, numerous all-conference honorees, and multiple academic all-state honorees.

"We were able to grow the boys program from a non-scoring team to a third-place conference team," Sandlin said. "I look forward to growing the Madison cross country program in numbers, success, and love for the sport. With my passion for the sport of running and the resources the community provides, I look forward to capitalizing on the success of the 1970s to present."

"We would like to thank Tyson Skinner for his time and leadership the last couple of years as our cross country coach," Bronkella said. "Tyson gives everything he has when coaching our athletes. His passion and energy enable him to get the best from our athletes, as is evident in his continued success with our wrestling team."

CFP CHAMPIONSHIP

Can Clemson's versatile defense flummox LSU and QB Burrow?

By RALPH D. RUSSO
AP College Football Writer

Top-ranked LSU and Heisman Trophy winner Joe Burrow head into the national championship game peaking, matching their record-setting offense with a healthy and improving defense.

Clemson has not lost since sophomore quarterback Trevor Lawrence joined the team in 2018. The third-ranked Tigers are looking for their third national title in four seasons and second straight.

With the help of Texas A&M's Jimbo Fisher, the only coach to face both Clemson and LSU, and Pro Football Focus college analyst Cam Mellor, the matchups that could make the difference Monday night in New Orleans:

WHEN LSU HAS THE BALL

What can Clemson defensive coordinator Brent Venables cook up to stop LSU's hyper-aggressive passing game that often attacks with five receivers?

Clemson is playing a 3-3-5 defensive alignment and using lots of eight-man coverage. Lacking dominant defensive lineman, Venables has needed to be creative to pressure the quarterback.

"Brent's going to blitz," Fisher said. "But LSU has been good at either picking it up or Burrow identifying it and getting the ball out quickly. Or he can scramble away from it and keep his eyes down field. He is so patient."

The stars of Clemson's defense are versatile back-seven players such as All-America linebacker Isaiah Simmons and strong safety Klavon Wallace, both of whom can play multiple positions, and free safety Tanner Muse.

Mellor said Burrow was the top-graded quarterback in the country this season when facing pressure.

"Pressure doesn't matter in this game as much as allowing Simmons and Muse to roam the back end freely," Mellor said.

LSU has five players who can consistently win one-on-one matchups in the passing game in wide receivers Ja'Marr Chase, Justin Jefferson and Terrace Marshall Jr., tight end Thadeus Moss and running back Clyde Edwards-Helaire. All have more than 40 catches, allowing Burrow to feast on a defense's weak links.

"They move those guys inside and force your linebackers and safeties to cover," Fisher said.

In the semifinal against Oklahoma, Chase, an All-American, was locked down by the Sooners. No big deal: Justin Jefferson caught 14 passes and scored four touchdowns, mostly working from the slot.

Burrow's raw numbers are eye-popping (55 touchdown passes and 5,208 yards). Go deeper and it gets even more impressive. He rarely forces throws into tight coverage, but when he does he completes those passes at a higher rate than any quarterback in the country, Mellor said.

"There isn't really much you can do to stop them," he said.

WHEN CLEMSON HAS THE BALL

Over his last seven games, Lawrence has been the highest-graded quarterback in college football by Pro Football Focus.

As prolific as LSU has been offensively, Clemson has the weapons to keep pace, with two-time Atlantic Coast Conference player of the year Travis Etienne at running back and wide receivers Tee Higgins, Justyn Ross (both 6-foot-4) and Amari Rodgers.

Higgins has been dominant, averaging 19.9 yards per catch with 13 touchdowns. Ross has been good, but not quite the breakout star he was during last season's playoff.

LSU has its own $2 million per year defensive coordinator in Dave Aranda, who will try to frustrate Lawrence with a plan built around two of the best cornerbacks in the country: Kristian Fulton is a possible first-round NFL draft pick while freshman Derek Stingley Jr., an All-American, was PFF's highest-graded cornerback.

Safety Grant Delpit also grades well in coverage, but his tackling has been spotty. That has improved of late after a high ankle sprain healed.

"Avoiding those three (in coverage) is the biggest win for Clemson," Mellor said.

The LSU defensive line is huge, with three 300-pounders usually on the field at once.

"Against that 3-4, it's hard to get a push inside," said Fisher, who expects Clemson to run outside the tackles.

Etienne is maybe the toughest back in the country to take down so getting him out in space is the way to go. Mellor said the junior set a PFF record by forcing missed tackles on 45% of his carries. The previous best was 33% last year by Iowa State's David Montgomery.

Could it be another busy day on the ground for Lawrence? The quarterback set career highs with 16 carries and 107 yards against Ohio State. He completed a season-low 54.5 percent against the Buckeyes, but was 3 for 3 on a late 94-yard, go-ahead touchdown drive.

"People get hung up on stats, but it's about making plays when you really need them and both of these quarterbacks can do that," Fisher said. "They both have the 'it' factor."

RUSSO'S PICK: LSU 35-27.

everyone. Kristin (Mills), Katie (Hartman), Alexis (Nall) and Savannah (Courtney), they've just been really good the last two games and I'm just happy I can help them score."

Todd had a tough assignment from the beginning Wednesday as she had to guard Lions guard Maddie Haberthy, who entered the game averaging a league-leading 17 points a game. Todd was up to the task however, as she held Haberthy to 2-for-8 shooting from the field and only four points.

"A lot of people don't understand the importance of Brooke Todd on the team," Jones said of his all-conference point guard. "She may not be the fastest, or jump the highest but she is the most competitive player out there and she plays incredible defense, and you saw what happened in the second quarter when she wasn't out there."

Makenzie Marcum came off the bench to score 17 points to lead Mount. Chloe Jansen added 11 points and seven assists.

Hanover improves to 6-5 overall but, more importantly, the Panthers remain unbeaten in Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference play with a 5-0 league record.

Hanover will look to remain perfect when it hosts Bluffton Saturday as part of a men-women's doubleheader. The men will play first at 2 p.m. with the women to following at 4 p.m.

Men pull away for win

Hanover pulled away in the second half to pick up a 73-52 win at Mount St. Joseph in men's basketball on Wednesday.

The Panthers led just 31-29 at halftime but outscored the Lions by 19 over the final 20 minutes to run away to the win.

Five different players reached double figures in scoring for Hanover, led by freshman Ty Houston who came off the bench to score 17 points on 6-of-11 shooting to go with seven rebounds. Mark Albers added 11 points for the Panthers while Isaac Hibbard, Matt Weimer and Connor Washburn each scored 10.

Brady Thomas scored 11 points off the bench to lead Mount.

Hanover, now 9-3 overall and 3-2 HCAC, hosts Bluffton today.

Inconsistency plagues Raiders in loss to Williamstown

WILLIAMSTOWN, Ky. — Consistency plagued Trimble County all night and the result was a 75-59 loss to Williamstown in the semifinals of the All "A" Classic Eighth Region Boys Basketball Tournament on Thursday.

The Raiders showed signs of the type of team that they could become with several strong stretches that saw them rip into substantial Williamstown leads. But each time Trimble gained some momentum, it immediately gave it back.

It was that lack of consistency that left Raider coach Marcus Mumphrey shaking his head.

"One of the things that we talked about was putting together a complete game and not having spurts where we score a basket and let them get back in it," Mumphrey said. "We've just got to go back and dig deep within ourselves and decide whether or not we want to win. At the end of the day, it comes down to us going out and making our minds up that we're going to play a complete game."

Trimble (2-12) spent virtually the entire game playing from behind. The Raiders got off to a great start, jumping out to a 7-2 lead but a 26-6 run staked Williamstown to a 28-13 advantage midway through the second quarter and the Demons were never truly threatened again.

Not that Trimble didn't make it interesting. Every time Williamstown pulled away, the Raiders answered with a quick run of their own. Trimble closed the second quarter on a small 7-2 run to get the lead back to 10 then answered an opening 10-0 run by Williamstown in the third quarter with a 14-2 run of its own to get the lead back to single digits.

But the Raiders could never sustain the momentum. That big Trimble rally was answered with a 10-2 run by Williamstown to take a 52-36 lead into the fourth. Trimble responded with an 8-2 rally to pull back to within 10 but five-straight Demon burst ended the threat.

The final four minutes of the game evolved into a free-throw shooting contest, a mini-game that Williamstown won easily. The Demons, who struggled from the line through the first three quarters, had no such issues in the fourth, hitting 14-of-17 over the final four and a half minutes to win going away.

Watching his team play well enough in spurts to keep the game interesting only reinforced Mumphrey's belief that the Raiders must get more consistent if they are going to compete.

"We're past taking it personal. We're past making excuses. We're past the point of blame anybody else. What we do on the floor is us," Mumphrey said. "We should be able to play with some of these teams that we've been taking losses from. I really believe that a large part with our mindset right now is the first part of the season. Having a few games where you can get over the hump pushes you into a plateau of basketball and right now, we're fighting to get past that."

Dylan Jennings led Trimble with 19 points while Beau Turner had 13 and Tate Ogburn scored 10. As a team, the Raiders were just 18-for-33 from the free-throw line but committed only 13 turnovers.

Caleb Tritschler scored 22 points, Aiden Johnson had 21 and Cole Kightlinger had 18. The Demons were 18-for-26 from the free-throw line and had 18 turnovers.

Williamstown, now 6-6 on the season, was to face Gallatin County in the All "A" Championship on Friday. Gallatin knocked off Carroll County 49-30 in the first semifinal.

Trimble County heads to Louisville Iroquois on Monday for a boys-girls doubleheader. The Raiders then play at Eminence on Wednesday.

Gallatin Co. 49, Carroll Co. 30 (semifinals) — Gallatin County pulled away in the fourth quarter to pick up a 49-30 win over Carroll County in the first semifinal on Thursday.

The Panthers were dealt a major blow when senior Wyatt Supplee, who leads the state of Kentucky in scoring at 30 points per game, injured his ankle in the first quarter.

Supplee eventually returned but while he was out, scoring on both sides ground to a halt. Gallatin eventually built a 25-10 lead early in the third quarter before Supplee returned and keyed a 12-0 rally that saw the Panthers pull to within three points.

But Gallatin stopped the run and eventually pulled away for the win.

Supplee, limping noticeably throughout the second half, finished with 13 points to lead Carroll while Keishawn Mumphrey had nine points.

Jared Rassman scored 21 to lead Gallatin.

Walton-Verona dominates from start to beat Lady Raiders

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer
dcampbell@madisoncourier.com

WILLIAMSTOWN, Ky. — Walton-Verona jumped on Trimble County from the word go, ripping off a 13-2 run to start the game and never looking back to post a 59-18 win in the semifinals of the All "A" Classic Eighth Region Girls Basketball Tournament in Williamstown on Wednesday.

The Lady Raiders were powerless to stop Walton's charge. The Bearcats scored 17 seconds into the game and never trailed, dominating the action on both ends of the floor.

Trimble, meanwhile, appeared to be stuck in neutral all night. While the Raiders committed only 15 turnovers in the game, they hit only eight shots from the floor and didn't have a good look all night.

"That's a good team over there and I give them credit, but no ifs, ands or buts about it, we have got to where we know that we can compete with teams and execute to the best of our ability," Trimble coach Kerrie Stewart said. "And then if we get beat, then we get beat and that's OK. I never mind getting beat by a better team. But I want to be able to compete up to the level of the teams we played and I don't think we did that all."

Trimble County (4-9) appeared lost from the opening tip in the face of a solid Bearcat squad that did all of the small things well and dictated the flow of the game.

The only points that the Raiders mustered in the game's first 16 minutes were buckets by Shelby Wilcoxson, Colby O'Connor, Emma Ginn and Abbi Ponder, the last a 3-pointer with less than a minute to play in the half and Walton-Verona already ahead 32-6.

As the game wore on, the Raiders got more and more flustered and any offensive flow drifted away. For Stewart, watching her team unravel was the worst part.

"I haven't looked at the turnovers yet but it wasn't like we were throwing the ball all over the place or (Walton-Verona) was pressuring us. We just didn't run any offense," Stewart said. "I'm not sure we took a single good shot in the game. We were so concerned with not throwing the ball away that we just stood there."

Walton-Verona (9-4) led 34-9 at the half and opened the third on a 13-2 run — punctuated by a Emma Strunk 3-pointer — to force a running clock. The mercy rule, coupled with the Bearcats' decision to clear the bench, ended the game quickly.

Strunk scored 13 points and Emma Gutman added 11 as the two Bearcat leaders nearly outscored Trimble by themselves. Twelve different players scored in the game for Walton.

O'Connor and Ginn each scored four points to lead Trimble. Wilcoxson, the team's leading scorer at nearly 16 points per game, was limited to just two.

Walton-Verona was to play host Williamstown in the Region championship Friday. The Demons were 38-34 winners over Gallatin County in Wednesday's other semifinal.

Trimble County's girls will return to action on Monday when they take part in a boys-girls doubleheader at Iroquis in Louisville.

the region to return to the riverfront to see and hear the incredible action from these state-of-the-art boats."

The Grand Prix class of hydroplanes last raced in Owensboro in 1979 after officials downsized from the larger powerboat counterpart, unlimited hydroplanes, which raced from 1969 through 1978.

In the 1970s, Owensboro was a mainstay of powerboat racing and drew between 50,000-100,000 spectators annually but rain and temperatures in the 60s, an energy crisis, and recession, made the environment tough for officials to continue.

Several years ago Owensboro completed a $69 million riverfront redevelopment, which quickly achieved international recognition This led to discussions and set the stage for the return of hydroplane racing on the river in 2020.

Dean Rojas, president of the Grand Prix America Hydroplane Racing Series, said the organization is "thrilled" to help return powerboat racing in such a unique town.

"Owensboro hosts more than 20 annual festivals including the world-famous International Bar-B-Q Festival, River of Music Party bluegrass festival, Big O Music Fest, just to name a few, and we at Grand Prix America hydroplanes intend to make hydroplane racing a must-see marquee summer festival for Owensboro for years to come," Rojas said. "We have a lot of hydroplane fans in the Central United States and Tri-State area. Owensboro provides a great opportunity for fans to see us up-close and personal on this new 1.2-mile Ohio River race course."

Owensboro, a cotu of just over 57,000, has a rich history in the sport. Former Miss Madison driver Jim McCormick, as well as hydro-driving Sterett family, hail from the city.

GIRLS BASKETBALL

Shawe beats Rock Creek for 5th win

By JORDAN BEAR
Special to the Courier
sports@madisoncourier.com

Shawe outscored Rock Creek 23-1 in the first half to sprint to a 29-11 win over the Lions at home on Thursday.

Shawe led 8-1 after the first quarter and seemed to be stuck on eight points for quite a while before the Hilltoppers heated up for 15 points in the final four minutes of the half to take a commanding lead.

The second half was rather slow for both teams as both managed only two points in the third quarter and Rock Creek not hitting a field goal until the fourth quarter.

Shawe subbed extensively in the second half to ensure that all players were able to see the floor, but coach Terry King was still not happy with the way his team played after halftime.

"A win is a win and I'm happy about that," King said. "It's our fifth win, which is how many games we won last year. I truly believe that we can win eight to 10 games this year but not the way we played in the second half."

Shawe was led in scoring by freshman Calli Alderman, who had 10 points and added five rebounds. Junior point guard Phoebe Grote had nine points and 10 rebounds.

"Calli is just a hustler and may turn it over two or three times, but she'll also get six or seven steals a game," King said. "She and Phoebe are the engines that make this team go. The way they take care of the ball, and constant improvement. With, Calli I don't think she ever gets tired. She'd play 32 minutes every game if we'd let her."

TO THE BASKET: Shawe's Grace McAllister (30) goes hard to the basket. (Photo by Stephanie Hellmann)

Rock Creek coach Camille Leach, a former Shawe coach and standout player at Southwestern, said it was nice returning to a place in which she's comfortable.

"It's always good to come back to a place you're familiar with. It's great seeing all the people I got to know in my five years here and just being able to talk to people that I haven't seen in quite some time," Leach said.

Rock Creek was led in scoring by Tiffany Miller with five points. Leah Thompson, the leading scorer for the Lions, left the game in the second quarter with a concussion and did not return. Leach said there's a noticeable difference when she's not on the court.

"Thompson is our best all-around player. Our best scorer, ball handler, and rebounder and when we lost her we just really struggled offensively," Leach said. "We just had to focus on our defense at that point and work on that."

Shawe improves to 5-9 with the win, its fourth win in the past six games including two over the one win Lions. The Hilltoppers return to action on Friday when they visit Oldenburg as part of a girls-boys doubleheader. Shawe then hosts Milan on Thursday.

Terri Jett to visit Hanover College

Butler University professor Terri Jett, Ph.D., will visit Hanover College toward the end of January to examine how efforts to increase access to healthy foods can connect people in other ways.

This event, "Food Connects Us All," will host an assessment of how food production and distribution can affect people's ideas about community starting at 7 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 23 at Hanover College's Ogle Center. This event is open to the public and free of charge.

Many urban and suburban people enjoy farm-to-table restaurants, shop at farmers markets or subscribe to community-supported agriculture programs. These offerings give a face to farmers and connect urban eaters to rural growers. In recent years, urban communities have planted gardens inside city lines to help reduce food deserts and food insecurity by increasing access to healthy items, including fresh fruits and vegetables.

This change in approach to where and how food is grown has challenged and mystified the once common image that farms are rural and cities are concrete jungles. The divergences in "traditional" food production and distribution have shown the ability to redefine and expand people's ideas about community across urban-suburban-rural lines.

Jett, who is currently writing the book "Farming for Justice: Food Access and the USDA," is an addiliate faculty member of Butler's Gender, Women and Sexuality Studies Program and the Peace and Conflict Studies Program. She also serves as a special assistant to the provost for diversity and inclusivity.

This presentation is part of the Indiana Humanities' INseperable Speakers Bureau. The event is sponsored by Hanover's Environmental Stewardship Committee.

Hanover is one of 24 organizations selected by Indiana Humanities to host a Hoosier scholar through the INseperable Speakers Bureau. This curated list of informative presentations, discussions and workshops by Indiana scholars is designed to help Hoosiers understand and talk about urban, suburban and rural differences.

Michael Eric Dyson to probe profiling

Students, staff and visitors of Hanover College will soon examine the impact of racial profiling on Black America when educator and author Michael Eric Dyson, Ph.D., performs as part of the Hanover Enrichment Series at the end of January.

Dyson's address, "In Caricature: Racial Profiling and its Impact on Black America," will be Friday, Jan. 24 at 7 p..m. in Hanover College's Fitzgibbon Recital Hall, Lynn Center for Fine Arts.

Dyson is a sociology professor at Georgetown University and was previously named one of the 150 most powerful African-Americans by "Ebony" magazine. As a two-time NAACP Image Award winner, he has appeared on nearly every major media outlet and is a contributing editor to "Time" magazine. He also hosts a program on National Public Radio titled "The Michael Eric Dyson Show," which delivers thoughtful analysis of today's biggest stories from pop culture to race relations.

Dyson has also authored 19 books, including "Come Hell or High Water: Hurricane Katrina and the Color of Disaster," which earned an American Book Award, and "The Black Presidency: Barack Obama and the Politics of Race in America," which was a finalist for the Kirkus Prize. His most recent book, "Jay-Z: Made in America," was published in November 2019 and provides an in-depth look at the recording artist's impact on American culture.

The Hanover Enrichment Series is presented by Tricia and Will Hagenah, which additional support from German American Bank.

Mardi Gras for Children's Advocacy

Mark and Tasha Jenkins, who currently live in Madison, will be representing Jefferson County as king and queen candidates at the annual Children's Advocacy Center of Southeastern Indiana (CAC) Mardi Gras fundraiser in February.

The CAC of Southeastern Indiana is a child-friendly nonprofit corporation created to minimize the trauma suffered by victims of child abuse. The CAC currently serves seven counties across southeastern Indiana, including Jefferson, Jennings, Ohio, Decatur, Ripley, Dearborn and Switzerland.

To help raise money for this nonprofit, the CAC of Southeastern Indiana hosts an annual Mardi Gras themed fundraising event with a King and Queen contest with candidates from each county they serve. The King and Queen couple that raises the most money by 11 p.m. the night of Feb. 29 will be crowned the King and Queen of Mardi Gras.

This year's candidates for Jefferson County are Mark and Tasha Jenkins. Mark has been with the Indiana State Police for almost 20 years and Tasha works with her family's engineering business selling nuclear valves for Sigma, Inc. Mark and Tasha have been married for 17 years and have three children, Hailey, Austin and Luke.

To help donate to the Mardi Gras fundraiser, go to the CAC of Southeastern Indiana website at www.cacsoutheast.org and click on the Mardi Gras tab. From there, you can vote for each county's canidates, including the Jenkins' in Jefferson County. Tickets and tables can also be purchased there for those who want to attend the Mardi Gras fundraiser on Feb. 29. For more information, go to www.cacsoutheast.org or call 812-432-3200.

Historic preservation photo contest starts off with new digital format

The Indiana Department of Natural Resources is ringing in the new year and decade by entering a revamped historic preservation photo contest.

The annual contest, run by the DNR Division of Historic Preservation and Archaeology, started in 2005 using a traditional print format to promote Indiana's historic resources. While the contest's purpose remains the same, this year's contest is moving to accept only digital submissions and not allowing printed photos to be accepted.

To enter this contest, all subjects of photos must be at least 50 years old and in Indiana. Photos can be black and white or color and must have been taken within the last two years. Each photographer can enter up to three images and an entry form is required for each photo.

Images can be emailed to aborland@dny.IN.gov and must be JPEG files that are 10 MB or smaller. Participants must send one photo and one entry form per email. Participants will also need to select one of five contest categories on the entry form to enter their photo: color, black and white, kids (younger than age 18), artistic, and altered image.

The entry deadline for this contest is April 3. For more information, go to dnr.IN.gov/historic/3994.htm

Jennings students receive free admission

Students at Jennings County High School can now cheer their Panthers teams for free at all home games this winter due to Hilex Poly.

Hilex Poly, a Novolex brand, will cover the cost for more than 1,400 Jennings County High School students to attend home events for the 2019-2020 winter athletic season. This corporate sponsorship will allow students to receive complimentary admission to home games for boys' and girls' basketball, swimming and diving meets and boys wrestling matches. Visitors will still need to pay the normal entrance fee to each game while students can walk in free with their student ID.

"Hilex Poly's sponsorship will help us build our athletic department and boost school spirit," said Cory Stevens, athletic director at Jennings County High School. "It's also a great step in bringing a major employer in our area to support our students and educate them on Hilex Poly's important sustainability efforts."

Hilex Poly employs more than 325 at its plastic film manufacturing and recycling facilities in North Vernon, home to the company's Bag-2-Bag recycling program where the recycling center converts used plastic retail bags into resin pellets, which are then recycled into new retail bags.

"We are very proud to sponsor Jennings County High School so students can cheer on their classmates to vistory," said Troy Cook, Recycle Plant Manager of Hilex Poly. "In addition to providing jobs, we want to give back to our community in other ways. We work here, we live here and our children go to school here, so we are very happy to support our community and our schools."

Hilex Poly has previously worked with Jennings County High School to provide job opportunities for its students and graduates and to teach students how to collect recyclable bags with Bag-2-Bag barrels. The company has also conducted chemistry demonstrations for students.

Submissions for the 2020 Hoosier Women Artists Contest now accepted

To help celebrate and further expand the role art plays in communities, Lt. Governor Suzanne Crouch, Treasurer Kelly Mitchell and the Indiana Arts Commission have announced the details for the 2020 Hoosier Women Artists contest.

Since 2008, the Hoosier Women Artists program has celebrated and further expanded the important role art plays in our communities by showcasing the work of talented female artists throughout the state.

"This is one of the highlights of my job, and one that I look forward to every year," said Crouch. "Each artist has their own unique story and they always find a beautiful way to express themselves. I cannot wait to see the artwork this year and meet the incredible and talented women behind the pieces."

The theme of the 2020 Hoosier Women Artists competition will be a celebration of women and commemoration of the women's suffrage centennial anniversary. Artists are encouraged to submit pieces related to this theme, expressed in the artists' own interpretation.

Crouch said a wide variety of visual arts including drawing, painting and photography are welcome to enter. The artwork will be judged by a panel that includes Crouch, Mitchell and peer artists coordinated by the Indiana Art Commission.

"Every year, it is my joy to welcome beautiful pieces of art into my office from Hoosier women artists," said Mitchell. "I look forward to this 2020 competition and cannot wait to see Indiana talent at work."

Winners of the Hoosier Women Artists contest will have their artwork displayed in Mitchell's office and the Lt. Governor's office at the statehouse for one year to be viewed by the thousands of school groups, visitors and staff who explore the building annually.

Additionally, pieces of art will also be selected by First Lady Janet Holcomb, Secretary of State Connie Lawson, Auditor Tera Klutz, Chief Justice Loretta Rush and Superintendent of Public Instruction Jennifer McCormick to display in their respective offices and the Governor's residence.

Submissions can be made on the Indiana Art Commission's online application system through Jan. 31. Applicants will need to create a username and password and select Hoosier Women Artists as the program name.

Requirements for this contest are:

- Framed wall art only
- Maximum dimensions (including frame): 42 inches by 60 inches
- Maximum weight: 60 pounds
- Must be installation ready, including frame and hanging wires
- Only one entry per artist will be considered

A reception will be hosted on March 4 at the Indiana Statehouse to honor the selected artists.

BRIDGE

THE BREAKS ARE BAD; IS THERE A WAY?

Ambrose Bierce, in "The Devil's Dictionary," defined philosophy as a route of many roads leading from nowhere to nothing.

So, bridge players must not be philosophical. On each deal, they need a single-lane route that leads to the number of tricks needed to make or break the contract.

In this deal with nasty shocks around every turn, how can South make seven diamonds after West leads the heart queen?

In the auction, two clubs was natural and game-forcing. Three hearts, three spades and four clubs were control-bids. In answer to Roman Key Card Blackwood, South showed two key cards, the diamond queen (five spades) and the club king (six clubs).

When the dummy came down, South saw that seven no-trump was an immediate claim. But he did not let that distract him. He wondered how to survive if diamonds were 4-0 and clubs 5-0. Somehow, he had to unblock clubs by discarding the ace and king. One could go on the spade ace, but what about the other?

South spotted that a dummy reversal was the way to go. He discarded a club (vital) from dummy at trick one.

Opening lead: ♥ Q

He crossed to the board with a trump, cashed the spade ace (discarding the club king), ruffed a spade, returned to dummy with a trump, ruffed another spade and drew West's last two trumps, pitching the club ace on the second. Then declarer took the last six tricks with dummy's clubs.

Caregivers need care given to them

Annie Lane

Dear Annie: I have a 31-year-old son who has always struggled with mental illness issues. He was diagnosed with depression at age 15 and again in his early 20s when we sent him to a week-long involuntary residential treatment. He will not stay on medication or go to counseling.

In the meantime, after years of not being able to keep a job, he finally had a good job for two years, which he lost 16 months ago. He moved in with us 10 months ago and has made no effort to search for another job. We gave him a deadline to get a job or move out, because we are nearing retirement age and cannot continue to pay for his living expenses, his car insurance and other bills that come up. It is obvious that he is not going to get a job. We do not want him to be homeless. He has been there before, and I know the outlook on homelessness and those with mental illness is not good. However, we can't continue to enable him. He can function. What should we do? — Parents at a Crossroads

Dear Parents: I am so sorry that you and your family are struggling with the ongoing battle that is mental illness. As painful as it can be to draw boundaries with our adult children, you said it best: To continue paying all of his living expenses at this point would be to enable him. If he is capable of working, as you stated, then a job could not only help stabilize his housing and finances; it could help with his mental health. Humans thrive with routine.

So let your son know that you will always unconditionally offer your love, but you can't continue to offer your money. If he is at a loss as to how to get back into the workforce, you can point him toward Individual Placement and Support (https://ipsworks.org). The National Alliance on Mental Illness states that IPS "can help people with mental illness find and keep meaningful jobs, supporting their mental health recovery."

And lest you think you're alone in this, please read on.

Dear Annie: I've read letters in your column from parents at their wits' end regarding children's behavior, whether they're adolescents or adults.

My son has a personality disorder, and I often have found myself exasperated. I had to call the police twice and take him to the ER once. And I've done a lot of praying. I talk to him every night and tried to encourage him. I am always bending over backward. It has been very difficult.

Many things have worked out well for him that previously were sources of stress. We are all still working on it. I'm very thankful to God and my relatives, who gave my son much needed social support. I encourage parents who have written to you in similar situations to keep praying and to contact NAMI. I have done that in the past. And ask family and friends if they can help. — S.B.

Dear S.B.: I'm printing your letter because it touches on such an important point: As important as it is to set boundaries, it's equally important to reach out to others for support. Caregivers need care given to them, too.
